

GREATEST NEED
IS PEACE, F. D. R.
TELLS CADETS*President Addresses Military Academy Graduates*HITS AGGRESSION AND INTOLERANCE*Secretary Dern and High Army Officials Attend Ceremonies

(By Associated Press)
WEST POINT, N. Y., June 12.—The greatest current need of the world, President Roosevelt asserted today, is "the assurance of peace—on an assurance based on mutual understanding and mutual regard."

Standing before the graduating class of the United States military academy, the chief executive said: "If you strive at all times to promote friendship and to discourage suspicion, to teach respect for the rights of others and to deny aggression, to oppose intolerance with a spirit of mutual helpfulness—then indeed your services will be of full value to your government and a source of satisfaction to yourselves."

Army Officers Present
Mr. Roosevelt, commander-in-chief of the country's armed forces, addressed the future officers of the army surrounded by one of the largest groups of army chieftains assembled in years, including Secretary of War Dern, General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, and Major General William D. Connor, superintendent of the academy.

"We maintain an army to promote tranquility," the President said. "And to secure us from aggression, but it is so created and so modest in proportion as to furnish proof that no threat or menace to the rights of others is even remotely intended."

Asserting his belief that the nation had "drifted too far" toward a "level unjustified by a due regard to our own safety," Mr. Roosevelt announced his approval of congressional acts to "accomplish a partial restoration of the army's enlisted strength."

The President also reflected some of his own thoughts as chief executive of the United States.

"One of the most difficult tasks of government today," he observed, "is to avoid the aggrandizement of any one group and to keep the main objective of the general good clear and unimpaired."

"The successful commander or an army must give consideration to all of the units which make up his army and in addition must of necessity remember the existence, the condition and the ultimate strength of his reserves and of the civilian population which is serving the same cause behind the lines."

The President also noted the "priceless blessing of friendship with our neighbors."

Personify Democracy
Mentioning the naval academy, too, he said these two military institutions of the nation "are the personification of democracy in the equality of opportunity they afford, unimpaired by prior social position or economic standing."

Two hundred seventy-six cadets marched to Battle Monument to receive diplomas from their commander-in-chief.

The graduation ceremonies, always a colorful event at West Point, took on added significance because Mr. Roosevelt was the first president to attend the exercises since President Wilson came here in 1916.

The ceremonies surrounding the President's visit called for a 21-gun salute when the chief executive's motor car entered the reservation after a drive from the Roosevelt home at Hyde park, 35 miles distant.

High army officials came here for the exercises, among them General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff.

G. O. P. STRESSES
CONSTITUTION*Grass Rooters Will Seek 1936 Victory On Basis Of This Issue

(By Associated Press)
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 12.—The constitution became a leading "Grass Roots" campaign issue today, with midwestern Republican politicians declaring themselves ready to combat the destructive forces at work in America today.

Organizers of the ten state convention indicated they would continue to strive for a 1936 Republican victory on the basis of the "save the constitution" slogan and a direct attack upon President Roosevelt.

Chairman Speaks
Following adjournment, General Chairman Harrison E. Spangler of the "Grass Rooters" said: "The conference has spoken. It has reflected the true heart of the Midwest. The people of this territory * * * have volunteered at the first call of the defense of our American institutions."

1. Stressed the "save the constitution" battle cry.
2. Made a sustained attack directly upon President Roosevelt, holding him responsible for criticized actions of the new deal.
3. Avoided carefully any G. O. P. presidential boom.

Orators hammered away at the constitution topic, expressing fear of centralization and dictatorship, during the two-day convention at the scene of Abraham Lincoln's political triumphs.

The cue came from Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois who emerged from retirement to declare the administration wanted an NRA amendment, with "the essential forms of American government challenged."

John D. M. Hamilton of Kansas said it provided the existence of a "fixed course to destroy the government."

A convention trial also was given the campaign strategy of inviting Democrats to join with the Republicans.

Explains Methods Of Sterilization

Methods and advantages of sterilization were discussed by Probate Judge Homer W. Hammond at a meeting of the Salem Rotary club yesterday in the Memorial building.

Judge Hammond first outlined the nature of the sterilization operation and methods employed pointing out that the operation merely eliminates reproduction and has no other effect.

He cited figures to show how defective as a general rule reproduce at a far greater figure than others and these people are largely wards of the tax payer.

He said that the world's bill for a year for the care of defectives is five billion dollars; for Ohio, he pointed out, it is three million.

H. H. Sharp was chairman for the meeting.

Miss Mary Louise Emery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Emery of 614 Perry st., today ranked as one of the outstanding parochial school students in the Youngstown deanery of the Catholic church.

Miss Emery, a member of the graduating class of St. Paul's school, received her diploma of promotion to high school, the American Legion medal and certificate, and a four-year scholarship to Ursuline High school in Youngstown as graduation exercises for the Salem class were held last night in St. Paul's church.

Rev. Fr. Maurice Casey, the pastor, congratulated the graduates and then presented the diplomas to the 37 members of the class. The American Legion award was for character and qualities of citizenship.

The Ursuline High school scholarship is given each year to children with the highest average in competitive examinations given by the school. Eighth grade children from all the parochial schools in the Youngstown deanery are eligible to take the examinations.

The graduation address last night was delivered by The Reverend William Newton, S. S. D., professor of Sacred Scripture at the Seminary of Our Lady of the Lake, Cleveland.

The following program was carried out:
Processional; Magnificat (Gregorian); address by Rev. Fr. Newton; and presentation by Rev. Fr. Casey; "To Christ the Prince of Peace" (St. Gregory); O Salutaris (St. Gregory); Tantum Ergo (St. Gregory); Holy God (St. Gregory).

The plot of the sketch centers around a group of church ladies who are fixing a missionary box to send to Africa. Just what does become of the articles for the box is learned at the conclusion of the play.

Mrs. A. C. Westphal and Mrs. Ralph Snyder will direct the following cast: Esther Mohr, Evelyn Alexander, Mrs. Zeldia Bush, Wilma Kirchgessner, Elizabeth Snyder, Violet Weikart, Kathryn Hinton, Dorothy Miller and Alice Jones.

The proceeds of the silver offering to be taken will be contributed to the building fund of the church. There will be no admission fee.

They Love a Parade

CHICAGO, June 12.—Morris Goldstein's tailor shop resembled a parade ground yesterday.

Pickets of the retail cleaners and dyers union started the march back and forth in front of Morris' shop carrying "unfair to labor" signs. But the ranks grew when Morris' wife and two children took up the march, following in the footsteps of the picketing cleaners, carrying signs which read "we're against organized racketeering."

WILL RE-SURVEY
STATE ROUTE 14*State Highway Engineer Plans Elimination Of Curves

Robert S. Wheatley, resident engineer for the state highway department, has assigned a crew of engineers to make a new partial survey of State Route 14 between Washingtonville and Columbiana, commonly known as the "Cox Highway."

Curves are to be eliminated to such an extent that motorists will be able to observe cars approaching in the opposite direction for 1,000 feet. This is a new ruling of the state highway department.

It is the opinion of Wheatley that after final plans and specifications have been worked up, the Columbus department will call for bids for construction this year.

Surveyors and draftsmen formerly employed on state highway projects who had been under the supervision of County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk have been assigned to the new office of the resident engineer in the Peoples State bank building.

Woman Is Injured In Auto Collision

State Highway patrolmen, who investigated, said Behrends hit Riley's car when he came out on a side road.

Special Call For CCC Campers Issued

Maybe He Lost

HIGH POINT, N. C., June 12.—Cy Mullis made a bet of 50 cents, but he doesn't know whether he won or lost.

After it was over, several friends told police Mullis bet them his automobile could take an S-curve nearly at 50 miles an hour. The car made the curve, clipped a telephone pole, then overturned.

Mullis, in a hospital where his condition was considered not serious, wondered about the bet while police made out charges against him for reckless driving.

KIDNAP TRIAL PLANS OPENED*Meanwhile, Police "Wait-It-Out" In Hunt For Third Suspect

(Copyright, 1935, By The Associated Press.)

SALT LAKE CITY, June 12.—The air of expectancy around the search for William Mahan, scar-faced suspect in the George Weyerhaeuser kidnapping, subsided early today but a heavy force of officers remained at Butte, Mont., in the belief he still was in that vicinity.

After federal agents and police had followed up dozens of clues without success, Jere Murphy, chief of police, said he believed the 32-year-old ex-convict had escaped through a tight net of police patrols, possibly hitch-hiking out of the country.

Believe He's Hiding
Chief Murphy's assistant, Jack Duggan, however, said emphatically that the much sought suspect could not have slipped through the police lines and that he still was in hiding in or near Butte.

Mahan was seen here last Sunday when he abandoned a motor car containing $15,155 of the $200,000 ransom paid for the release of the nine-year-old Tacoma, Wash., timber fortune heir.

"We will have to settle down and wait him out," said Duggan. "He knows this country and he had a hideout prepared for him."

SCHOOL FINANCING
BILL, TO PROVIDE
48 MILLION, SIGNED*UTILITIES BILL
GOES TO HOUSE*Commerce Committee Is Sharply Divided Over Plan

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 12.—Another bitter-end fight now confronts the Wheeler-Rayburn bill to abolish "unnecessary" utility holding companies. The measure, which passed the senate, 56 to 32, late yesterday, after President Roosevelt had intervened to prevent a sweeping alteration, dropped today into the hands of a sharply divided house commerce committee.

The committee has been struggling with a companion measure for four months. When the legislation will reach the house floor for debate appeared highly uncertain.

Is Strong Words
Such words as "fraud," "chicanery," "blood suckers" and "thieves" sprinkled the debate which raged in the senate right up to the moment of yesterday's voting. After the decision, friends and foes of the bill continued to make clashing pronouncements.

A statement that the senate vote was "an action to lengthen the nation's breadlines" was made by Philip H. Gadden, chairman of the committee of public utility executives.

"By blocking the normal expansion of a great industry, by impairing the savings of millions of people, by crippling a service now of basic importance to the American homes and factory, this bill represents the major menace threatening the national welfare," he said.

Senator Wheeler (D. Mont.) had asserted that the bill would restore public confidence shaken by such events as the Insull collapse, said of the vote:

"I think this means the end of the holding company system generally. Sentiment against holding companies is building up. This serves notice that the people are not going to stand for the practices."

CITY RECEIVES
PWA FUND FORMS*Solicitor to Fill Out Application In City Hall Project

Applications from the state public works office at Columbus for the filing of Salem's proposed $87,000 city hall project, were received today by City Solicitor Lozier Caplan.

The solicitor indicated today that no office would be lost in placing the applications and data for the approval of the city's municipal project in the hands of the state PWA officials.

The data received from Columbus today included an explanation of the procedure for submission of PWA non-federal applications and included forms for:

1. Form of application for loan and grant.
2. Form for submitting engineering information.
3. Form for submitting financial information.
4. Form for submitting legal information.

Seven copies of the above applications will be made out as requested by the state PWA office. One folder will be retained by the city for reference.

Traxler-Kiefer - Mathews Measure Is Signed By Governor*DAVEY'S VIEWS ON PLANS ARE STATED*Signed It "Despite Many Objectionable Features"

COLUMBUS, June 12.—Governor Davey today signed the Traxler-Kiefer-Mathews bill to provide $48,000,000 of state financing for public schools.

The governor said he signed the measure despite "many objectionable features." The measure provides for a foundation public school program based on an appropriation of $45 a year for each elementary pupil, $67.50 a year for high school pupils, and $22.50 for kindergarten pupils. It also provides for reorganizations and consolidations of existing schools.

Issues Statement
In announcing his signature of the bill, the governor issued the following statement:

"After giving careful consideration to the foundation school bill, I have signed it today in spite of the fact that it has some objectionable features."

"Three major considerations have led me to this favorable action. The first is that it represents the consummation of the hopes and labors of all those interested in the schools of Ohio, and is the result of the ardent effort of these earnest citizens over a long period of time."

"The second reason amounts to an emergency. There are approximately 16,000 teachers in Ohio whose salaries have been unpaid for a period of several months, and who would be without hope of pay, without the provisions of this bill. Such a situation could not be permitted because the schools of Ohio must continue to function and those who labor in the cause of education must receive their compensation."

"The third forceful reason is the fact that all school budgets must be prepared within the next few weeks. The school authorities and the boards of education must know what revenues will be available in order to prepare their budgets intelligently."

Lists Some Faults

"On the whole, the foundation school bill is good. But it contains certain faults which ought to be corrected by future legislation. Personally, I am opposed to an extensive forced reorganization, as provided in this bill. I want to make it perfectly clear that the director of education will have my instructions to move very cautiously and with the utmost consideration for the rights and the feelings of the people in the districts affected."

"I am opposed, also, to the general principle of increased state power over the control of the schools. It is my firm conviction that the policy of centralization is wrong, and that maximum control must be preserved for the local communities."

"I believe, also, very firmly, that the local district should provide one-half of the prescribed school revenues in dollars, and not on a theoretical millage basis which is so unequal in the various counties and communities because of the differences in the basis of valuation. State aid should then be provided on the basis of maximum local participation. It would be a sad day for the schools of Ohio if they did not participate equally with the state, wherever possible, and if in the failure to do this, local control of the schools were surrendered to the state."

"Considerable objection has been raised to this bill because of the substantial increase in cost for such no provision has as yet been made. It is obvious that these additional revenues must be provided. There is some logic in the objection to the increased state taxes that will be required. But, after all, nothing is more important to this state than the proper and adequate education of its children. The protection of the home, the maintenance of religion, proper education of the youth, and decent enforcement of law are the keystones in the arch of our civilized society."

The Same Names

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 12.—Well I got a kick out of that bunch of unemployed old timers who call themselves the "Grass Root Boys."

They just met and "denounced" and re-denounced, and give the prize to the fellow that called the president the most names. But they all do it. When Mr. Hoover was in, why the other side did the same thing. In fact, I think it's the same names they called him, for neither side has ever been original enough to think of new ones.

That's what makes politics such a high class, gentlemanly game. Prize fighters meet and fight, and then are considered low brow, far as saying, "Well, the best man won."

Yours,

Will Rogers

HIS SPECIAL DAY

There had to be a father's day because there had to be a mother's day. It seemed the decent thing to do. His special day in 1935 happens to be June 16. Of course, there isn't much that can be done about father's day in a sentimental way. Fathers, as a rule, are experts at extinguishing sentiment if it tries to burst into flame. The suspenders, belts, cuff links and neckties they will get in recognition of their common status will be accepted without more than a minimum of surprised gratitude. It's best to be prepared in advance for the attitude which tradition demands that fathers take in the presence of attempts to slide a pedestal under them.

Nevertheless, father's day is a good idea. It gives one Sunday each year special significance, it provides an opportunity to replenish the supply of equipment which affectionate families think fathers need and it does throw out a hint to the head of the family that he could command a vote of confidence around the dinner table, if he ever cared to risk it.

RALLYING 'ROUND'

The thousands of midwestern Republicans who enthusiastically gathered in Springfield, Ill., for the purpose of lambasting the new deal do not know how their activities will be received. They hope for active support; they will be satisfied with tolerance; they would be surprised by rebuke.

They believe their countrymen have grown doubtful of President Roosevelt's ability to do what they hoped he would do. If doubt grows into open distrust, which they hope it will do, the minority party will be able to capitalize in 1936 on dissatisfaction, the strongest element in the 1932 presidential election.

The Springfield conference has planted the seeds of an united political opposition to the Roosevelt administration. That is all it was expected to do and all it could do at this time. There is no established rule for developing an opposition. Usually, the party in power determines the nature of its opposition by the policies it adopts to deal with its problems.

Dissatisfaction with those policies is the strongest possible factor in elections. While it may be argued the Republican party has no chance of overturning the new deal, the fact that Republicans from one important section of the nation are rallying 'round their leaders to make the fight is unmistakable evidence of a tremendous growth of popular doubt. Mr. Roosevelt no longer is head of a coalition government. Almost impudently, Republicans are thinking of the possibility of getting support from dissatisfied states' rights Democrats.

The Republican party has a fundamental issue for the presidential campaign, the centralization of power in Washington. During all its history, up to 1932, the Democratic party has resisted centralization. President Roosevelt's declaration that the doctrine of a federal government of limited powers, specifically prescribed in the Constitution, belongs to "the horse and buggy age" is direct repudiation of a fundamental principle which has animated the Democratic party throughout its existence. Unless modified, that declaration is bound to split the party and bequeath to the Republican party, temporarily at least, a principle of tremendous appeal to voters in these days when centralization has become the bogey of free government.

The Republican party's other asset is dissatisfaction. It is more potential than actual at the present time, because it could be destroyed quickly by continued improvement in business. The country is doubtful of the prospect, and from its doubt has emerged the opposition plainly expressed by the Springfield delegates. The terms of the 1936 campaign are shaping up more rapidly than anyone could have foreseen during the first two years of the Roosevelt administration.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, June 13—Major Edward Bowes, attaining new radio heights with his amateur hour, is a comforting symbol for those who rather expect to be caught by the down-beat after 50. When most successful men begin to clear off their desks and shuck responsibilities, he becomes the busiest man of his day.

Despite the pressure of his affairs and the blunderbuss of modern living, the Major remains to all appearances an easy-going gentleman. He is an echo of the Victorian age when there remained leisure in the world, when one could read poetry or spend a week end in tale.

Not even intimates understand how he gets so many things done. He has time to putter in his vast flower gardens on his up-the-Hudson estate. And is one of the perpetual hosts at week end parties and formal dinners in an art-filled town apartment.

He is on dozens of committees and boards of directors, a frequent after lunch and dinner speaker and first nighter. Yet is always at his desk at 9 o'clock, managing the affairs of one of the largest movie houses and assembling the endless details of his broadcasts.

The dramatic critic's chores begin to ease off the first of June and until September, save for a few summer revues, he has time on his hands. Gilbert

Gabriel usually retires to a fauborg to write a book. John Anderson and John Mason Brown often go lecturing. George Jean Nathan, Burns Mantle and Brooks Atkinson assemble a volume of essays each and Percy Hammond takes things easy at his East-hampton estate.

Three years ago a dramatic critic would have traded his job for two marbles and a skipping rope. It seemed the most futile of the artistic callings. Five theatrical attractions were running when the normal crop should have numbered more than 60. Several of the critics sang their own swan songs in print and were casting about for other connections. Then the theatre, so far as New York was concerned, was reborn. Its rise has been steady. Next year may be the most auspicious in many years.

The prim, buttoned-up life of the upper avenue, a few blocks north of Radio City, was treated to a mid-afternoon verbal skirmish that fairly turned the air blue. The principals were two fashionably dressed women. One had come upon another with a shrinking, white-faced man who was her husband. The women dropped all pretences of refinement and the flow of billingsgate almost made the listening taxi-drivers blanch. It was all over before a policeman arrived. My companion recalled that his doctor told him the vilest language he ever heard came often from the lips of respectable women under anaesthetics. That happens, too, in the stress of great anger.

Broadway's No. 1 Cinderella boy of the theatre is Alex Yokel, who, dead broke, produced a play by an author who was down to 18 cents. With the moving picture rights and six road companies plus an assured year's run on Broadway, Yokel will garner a million within the year. The play was one of those hokum oddities called "Three Men on a Horse." Brightly humorous it also had the clean plot of "Abe's Irish Rose" and stressed the under-dog. Yokel has been one of the up and downers of the Broadway see-saw, taking pressagent jobs to grub stake him for his various theatrical flings. Mostly he lost but never gave up trying. Chicago knew him as a hard boiled reporter of the hard boiled days of Walter Hovey, Ben Hocht and Charles MacArthur.

Thingumbobs: Frank G. Menke wrote all those wise-cracking Max Baer letters to the sports editors and columnists. Charles M. Schwab always tunes in on Jack Benny. Carl Van Vechten is the only successful modern novelist who quit at the peak. Kathleen Norris dedicated her last book to Edna Ferber. Henry Sell arrived in London at 10 a. m., lunched at Simpson's and left at 5 that afternoon for Southampton to catch the Normandie for America.

He is one of those quick stepping, beaming fellows with a bass drum heartiness who crosses my path frequently and always hails me with a "Hi Charlie!" The other afternoon he caught me off center and I stopped rather petulantly to explain my name wasn't Charlie. He said he called everybody Charlie. Today he again beamed by and called: "Hi Clem." I wish I had let the fool alone.

A Review of the Day's News

—By Arthur Brishane—

A SPOKESMAN for the Weyerhaeuser kidnapers, who wrote that he and his associates were "well educated", and could not be caught, was mistaken. A lady kidnaper, Mrs. Harmon M. Waley, and her husband, arrested, have confessed. She was caught when passing a ransom bill. The hideout where the little boy was kept hidden in a closet has been found.

William Mahan, ex-convict, another "educated" kidnaper, abandoned his automobile in Butte, with $15,155 of the "hot" ransom money in it. Government men think they will get him.

That "hot" money is not as popular as it was when the kidnappers were planning their crime.

CHINA, BECAUSE she cannot do otherwise, yields in full to Japan's demands. That is the news from Tientsin and it happens because the 400,000,000 Chinese are not prepared for war, whereas the 60,000,000 Japanese ARE prepared.

"Yielding" probably will not save China from another heavy loss of territory. It is predicted that the young Chinese Emperor, Japan's figurehead in Manchukuo, will be moved over and back to the old imperial palace, there to sit again, as the Japanese imperial dummy.

All this is not our business, for it is happening in Asia. We have plenty to do here.

FRANK O. LOWDEN, former governor of Illinois and an able citizen, urges Democrats to rally 'round the Republican standard and save the Constitution from the danger that menaces it in "high places", Mr. Lowden asks.

"Are we to discard the American form of government for imported philosophies?"

Mr. Lowden, who doesn't want "the dictatorship of either the fascist or proletarian type of government," knows, of course, that our government, itself, is "imported." A "piece" written or recited in Greek before the beginning of the Christian era is supposed to have served as Jefferson's model in writing the Declaration of Independence.

Europe supplied our government ideas. But we made our choice and don't want it changed. That is the Republican stand; but it will be hard to make Democrats rally around any Republican standard until they finish rallying around the good Democratic $4,480,000,000 cash fund.

IMPORTANT TO the human race is news of the "brain bath", which according to physicians gathered at a convention of the American and Canadian medical associations, literally "washes the brain", freeing it from the poison of disease such as infantile paralysis, St. Vitus dance, sleeping sickness, and some kinds of spinal meningitis.

A solution of salt and water is injected into the vein at the ankle. After it has gone through the circulation, and washed out the brain, it is withdrawn, with its collected poisons, through a needle inserted in the lower end of the spine.

EXTRAORDINARY CURES are reported by reputable physicians. The wise that know how to advertise will investigate a "new, non-poisonous destroyer of germs", which is 250 times more powerful than carbolic acid, yet so harmless to human tissue that you might drink it. All that is to the glory of medical science.

An attempt to establish in various states a system of health insurance, and to make good medical care available for the poor, is characterized by some of the medical gentlemen as "vicious, dangerous, deceptive and demoralizing."

There is not so much glory in that, for it sounds as though some medical gentlemen were afraid of losing fees. Those that are afraid amount to little as doctors. Real science fears nothing except ignorance.

Pimples May Bring Infection

EVERY SKIN blemish is a cause for much embarrassment and sometimes real unhappiness. Skin eruptions due to pimples, blackheads and closed pores are called acne. It is a common affliction of boys and girls who have reached the age of puberty.

At this time of life there is increased activity in the functions of the various glands, including those of the skin. The mechanism of these glands may not operate exactly right and in consequence there is some form of skin disturbance such as acne.

In this condition the skin, particularly of the face, neck and back, becomes greasy and is covered with pimples. A whitish substance accumulates in the pores of the skin. The outer portion is soiled with dirt and the face looks as if sprinkled with pepper. If those spots become irritated and infected, pus-filled pimples result. Carelessness in the handling of these sores may lead to serious infection and permanent scars.

Let me warn against neglect and mistreatment of acne. Never squeeze a pimple or attempt to remove a blackhead by pinching the skin between the finger nails. This is a common practice which often leads to disfiguring infections of the face.

Keep Face Clean

Keep the face clean and free as possible from dust and grime. A good plan is to scrub the infected areas with soap and hot water. Cleanliness is the important thing. The blackheads should be removed with a specially made extractor. This can be purchased in any drug store. It can be sterilized by boiling in hot water and should be sterilized before using. Likewise, the face and hands should be thoroughly, very thoroughly, cleansed before attempting to remove the blackheads.

Infected pimples should only be opened after the greatest care in cleansing everything which is to touch the skin, as well as the skin itself.

Never apply an ointment unless prescribed by a physician. As a rule, sulphur ointments are beneficial for this disorder. But it must be a freshly prepared and sterile preparation.

Diet Important

In addition to local treatment attention should be given the diet. Without it, ointments and care of the skin alone will not overcome the disorder. The diet should be simple and varied, intended to build up rich and pure blood. It should not contain an overabundance of starchy foods, sugars, sweets, pies, pastries, or fried and greasy foods. Include an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables, especially salads with lettuce as the foundation.

Make sure of regular elimination. When the body wastes are not disposed of as they should be the blood stream becomes sluggish, so to speak. With that condition the skin cannot be well-nourished and glowing with health.

Severe cases of acne may be cured by following these rules. In

WHOSE WIFE? A CYRUS K. MANTEL MURDER MYSTERY

by CLADYS SHAW ERSKINE AND IVAN FIRTH

SYNOPSIS

Lawrence Vane, noted portrait painter, is held as a material witness in connection with the murder of his bride of three months following the discovery of a headless nude body upon the terrace of his penthouse apartment. Three weeks before that happened, two of his friends—Wilbur Renton and Roger Thornley—were discussing their love affairs and Vane's recent marriage to Isabel Mackenzie who was well known to both. Renton's interest in Isabel had caused a break between him and Betty Potter, a pretty young newspaperwoman who lives in the apartment beneath the Lawrence Vane's. Thornley says that he and his wife, Millie, a former show-girl, were leaving for Seattle soon. Renton calls on Betty to plead his cause anew, now that Isabel had married. She tells him that they cannot marry and instantly admits that she has been in love with Vane. Renton bitterly denounces Isabel, exclaiming that he'd like to choke her to death. Betty is identified by his words.

Early the next morning, Wilbur Renton denies that he had anything to do about notifying the police concerning the Vane murder, and is worried privately because he had called on Betty Potter so close to the scene of that homicide. Inspector Ingles persuades Betty to consult her uncle, Cyrus K. Mantel, famous detective. She does so, and he is startling her by what he already knows concerning last night's tragedy.

CHAPTER VIII

Again Cyrus K. Mantel shook the masses at her angrily.

"He knew," he said, "that Betty Potter would come plunging in here early in the morning as possible, to try and get Cyrus K. to help that puppy Vane out of the mess he's got himself into. That's what he knew. So there, my dear!"

"Oh, Uncle! Betty was between laughter and tears. 'You always know everything, even before a person knows it himself.'"

"She flared into an anger that matched his. 'But don't you dare call Lawrence a puppy—don't you dare!'"

"Suddenly an angelic smile spread over the Puck-like features of Cyrus K. He carefully placed his glasses on his nose and beamed through them at his niece.

"How should I know what to call him?" he questioned equably. 'I've never met the chap.'"

"She went to him quickly and perched herself on the arm of his great chair. With the darning of a known love she rumbled his red hair, so like her own, save for the white streaks that now distinguished it.

"Uncle Cyrus," she begged, "you have got to help me. Please do one thing for me, but you to do it for me. Please, Uncle Cyrus."

"No!" he shot back at her with all the force of a bullet. "No!"

"Isn't there anything I can do, anything I can say, that will make you change your mind? Please, Uncle Cyrus, please!"

"No!" he repeated. "No!"

"Of course, it's a very difficult case," she said slyly. "I suppose it is too much to ask. After all, any detective might fail... even you. I guess it's too much for anyone to take a chance on such a dreadfully hard case as this one."

"She rose, as though defeated, from his chair, and bent over to kiss him good-bye.

"He glared at her out of black eyes, smaller than his own. 'Who said so?' he shouted. 'Who said so? Think you're clever, Miss. Well, get out of here, I'm busy. I'm busy as can be. I'm on the Vane murder case.'"

The first thing Cyrus K. Mantel did after shouting at his adored niece to "get out," was to remain seated quietly in his great armchair until he heard her high heels click across the polished surface of the hardwood floor in the hall beyond. He leaned forward intently and listened for her voice as she said good-bye to the old butler. His face wrinkled into a smile of pleasure as he noted the gay laughter with which Betty made some comment to the old man. Cyrus K. was content. Betty understood his supposed taunts as well as he understood hers. For a few moments longer he sat beside his desk. One who knew him well would have known that he was deep and serious thought, for he removed his pince-nez, and slowly and carefully was stroking his right eyebrow with the rim.

Suddenly he replaced them on his nose, and picked up the telephone at his elbow.

"Hello! Give me police headquarters. Hello! Headquarters? Put me through to Inspector Ingles. Cyrus K. Mantel speaking." A slight pause and Ingles' voice greeted him.

"Ingles?" Mantel went straight to the point. "Betty has just left my home. Sorry you didn't come in with me. He chuckled at the surprise and discomfort he knew the unhappy man at the other end of the line was feeling. 'Can you meet me later away at the Tombs?' he continued. 'All right. That's fine. Just as soon as I can make it. Good-bye.' He hung up and stared at the telephone for a moment, as though he expected the insensate black telephone to speak and tell him something of value. Then, with a little shake of his shoulders, he rose and left the room.

As Police Inspector Ingles and Cyrus K. Mantel met in the central office of the Tombs, the prison bell struck the hour of ten. The warden in charge mechanically went through the usual strict routine of checking them in. Then a guard took them through a series of heavy doors, carefully looking each one after the little group, as soon as they had passed through.

They walked down the corridor where the temporary prisoners are held—twitching drug addicts, and blowsy women of the town. A tall negro shrieked at them as they passed, screamed, and then went off into a drunken shrill singing of "De Glory Road."

Fastidiously, Cyrus K. stepped aside from these dregs of humanity, and yet his brilliant black eyes looked at them with kindness and a depth of understanding. To Ingles it all meant just part of the day's work.

"Here you are!" said the guard, and opened the door of a cell.

It would have been difficult for anyone to recognize in the haggard man with the haunted blood-shot eyes the well-groomed, gentle artist Lawrence Vane. His proximity, for one night and half a morning, to the tragedy and squalor of the Tombs had deeply affected his sensitive nature.

He looked up at them as they entered, then dropped his head into his hands again, and crouched on the side of the prison cot in an attitude of utter dejection.

The guard closed the door on them and locked them in with the prisoner.

Ingles broke the silence.

"Lawrence," he said in a strained voice, "I've brought you a friend."

"Friend?" Vane repeated bitterly from the shelter of his cupped hands. "Friend? I have no friends. He raised his head and looked Ingles straight in the eyes. 'I used to call you by that name,' he said quietly.

The Inspector flushed painfully, and for a moment his stern mouth quivered.

"All right, Lawrence," he said steadily. "I don't blame you for feeling that way. But let that pass. I have brought you a friend and one who can help you."

Vane looked coldly at the dapper little figure standing beside the burly inspector.

"I do not know this gentleman," he said insolently.

Cyrus K.'s own particularly lovable smile flashed over his face. He bowed in stately old-world fashion.

"That has been my very great loss," he said gently. The piteous look of a whipped dog, who has unexpectedly found a defender, came over Vane's face. He rose, and stood with all of his old graciousness.

"Thank you, sir," he said. "It is very kind of you to come to see—bitterness tinged his voice again as he glanced at Ingles—"a jail-bird," he finished.

"You are in error," Mantel corrected him gaily. "I come to see an artist whose work I have long admired."

An expression of pleasure lighted Vane's down features.

"That's more than kind of you, sir," he said. "For the first time his old time gentle humor returned to him."

"I am afraid I cannot offer you any refreshments," he said. "Or even a comfortable chair." He waved toward the cot and the single wooden chair the cell afforded. "Will you be seated upon the luxurious lounge, or will you take the easy chair?" he asked whimsically.

"Let the Inspector have the big upholstered chair," Cyrus K. met him in his own vein. "He's a heavy man, getting on in years." He twinkled up at Ingles. "We young fellows will sit upon the davenport."

Chuckling, he moved over to the meager cot and seated himself, and Vane, with the first smile he had shown, sat beside him.

Ingles quietly took the stiff, straight-backed chair and said to Mantel significantly, "Time is getting short. Don't you think we'd better get down to business?"

"Surely, surely," agreed Cyrus K. soothingly. He turned to Vane.

"But first, young man, I want to ask you a very important question."

He nodded his head slowly. "A very important question," he repeated.

The hunted look covered Vane's face again, veiling its temporary brightness.

"What is that question?" he asked cautiously.

"Do you know who I am?"

"Why—why—?" relief and amusement fought in Vane's voice. "Why—no, sir!"

Cyrus K. leaned back and shook his head in distress.

"Dear, dear," he murmured. "Of such thin fabric is the robe of fame made. Dear, dear!" He swung toward Ingles.

"Introduce me, Inspector," he ordered.

Ingles could not fathom the workings of the brain of this gray-headed little genius, but he was sure that whatever line of talk Mantel took, there was a definite motive back of it all. So, in spite of his heavy heart, he tried his best to enter into the lightness, which Mantel seemed desirous of maintaining in the conversation. These were not the heavy-handed police methods with which he was familiar. But he had implicit faith in Cyrus K. Mantel, and whatever method he chose to employ, would be the right one.

Clumsily he tried to play the game.

"Lawrence Vane," he said smilingly, "may I have the honor to present to you the world-famous detective, Mr. Cyrus K. Mantel—Mr. Mantel, the world-famous artist, Mr. Lawrence Vane!"

Amusement dawned on Vane's face.

"Cyrus K. Mantel?" He almost shouted the words. "Why, Mr. Mantel—I am honored and proud and happy to meet you. Aren't you Betty Potter's uncle?"

"As I said before," sighed Mantel. "Of such is fame. Yes, young man, I acknowledge the impeachment. I am the uncle of that red-headed vixen."

He studied the man beside him.

"Do you know her?" he asked slowly.

Vane flushed.

"Why, yes," he said. "Not well—I mean I've known her for a long time—but not well—you see I—"

"You know many women—well—do you not?" Cyrus K.'s voice had taken on an edge.

"Just what do you mean by that?" Vane's answer had fully as much edge to it as had the voice of his questioner.

"I mean exactly what I say, young man," snapped Mantel.

"I'm afraid I shall have to question your right to question me," said Vane arrogantly.

Cyrus K. slapped his knees soundly.

"Excellent," he beamed. "Excellent! I'm glad to see, my boy, that you still have plenty of pride and fighting spirit. Excellent!"

Vane relaxed, and his smile answered Mantel's, though somewhat unsurely.

"Mr. Vane," he said, for the first time calling him by name. "I'm sorry, but in order to expedite matters and enable me to accomplish my purpose in coming here, I shall have to ask you a few questions about the tragic happenings in your home last night."

"May I ask one question first?" Vane countered. Getting a quiet nod for answer, he continued: "What is your reason for coming here, Mr. Mantel?"

Through Mantel's mind flashed the picture of his lovely distressed niece, and her call upon him for help but a few hours before—and at the same time he honestly debated with himself as to what his real reason had been. For here was a case made to order for the peculiar powers of Cyrus K. Mantel—the sort of case that he loved. Just what had been his reason, he wondered—his niece or his name?

"My reason?" he repeated slowly. "My reason?" Again Betty's lovely face came before his mind's eye.

"To help you," he said gently.

For a tense moment the two men looked into each other's eyes—then Mantel held out his hand, and Vane grasped it.

"Thank you," he said simply. "I'll be glad to answer any questions I can, but I warn you that I know very little about it myself, with the exception of what my friend," he accented the word, "the Inspector here told me, when he arrested me."

"Let's forget me," said Ingles brusquely, "and get down to business. You're in a bad hole, Lawrence, and unless you help us, all you can, Mr. Mantel will not be able to do anything at all."

He added under his breath, "And Lord knows how he thinks he can help on a surefire case like this, anyway."

"What happened last night?" asked Mantel.

Mullins, Elks Tied For First Place In City Softball Loop

Elks Take Forfeit From Undeclared Mullins Team Last Evening; Playoff Games Thursday Involve Hardwares and Dairies

ON TUESDAY the Elks softball team won a very important forfeit from the Mullins team who couldn't round up another player. The forfeit was important in that it may cost the strong Mullins aggregation the first round championship.

The Mullins and the Elks now are tied for first place in the Class A league, the Elks having lost a game earlier in the season. The Mullins probably could have taken the pennant last evening but now they have two teams to play.

On Thursday night Mullins must appear at Centennial park, scene of the softball activities this season, to play the Hardwares. They have the Hardwares to beat in order to face the Elks.

On the same evening the Elks will play the Smith Creamery team in the second game. The bill of fare is one that should bring out the local softball fans by the hundreds.

Allowing the Christians only two hits last evening the Friends church league team beat the Christians, 5 to 1, while in another church league game, the Presbyterians fell short by one run and the Trinity Lutheran, took a 4 to 3 victory. Summaries:

Brewers Wallop St. Paul, 13 To 5

CHICAGO, June 12.—Eddie Marshall's record-breaking hitting streak was still alive today, thanks to an extra turn at bat.

The Milwaukee shortstop, who shattered the American association record Monday by hitting in his 40th consecutive game, went hitless in five trips to the plate, and the prospects looked black. But in the ninth inning, he got another chance and smashed out a single to run his streak to 41 straight games.

Milwaukee didn't need Marshall's bat, however. The Brewers bunched 12 hits effectively to defeat St. Paul, 13 to 5.

Petillo May Try Record For Speed

PITTSBURGH, June 12.—Kelly Petillo, the Pittsburgh boy who made good in the auto races, is willing to take a crack at Sir Malcolm Campbell's 276.8 miles an hour record if he can find a backer.

Back for a visit in the city where he was born 31 years ago, the Los Angeles driver who won the 500-mile Indianapolis grand May 30 at an average speed of 106.2 miles an hour, told his friends:

"If someone will furnish the backing, I'll furnish the speed. I think the record should come back to the United States, don't you?"

Auto Race Drivers Promote Contests

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 12.—America's leading automobile race drivers have incorporated and will promote their own contests this summer.

PRISONERS CRY "KILL HIM" AT BASEBALL GAME

Ohio Penitentiary Game Attracts Lot of Attention, Inside

By FRITZ ROWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, June 12.—Cries of "kill him" rang out inside the cold gray walls of Ohio penitentiary, teeth were loosened as baseball bats were swung and one company beat another into submission, but H. E. Laubhart, inspector in charge of the prison yard, just looked on and grinned.

It wasn't a riot, it was just a baseball game yesterday between Company 4-1 from the print shop and Company 2-G from the planing mill. The "kill him" cries were directed, as usual, at the umpire. The loosened teeth were in the mouth of "Nose" Levido, catcher for the 4-1 team, who refused to wear a mask and caught one ball in the face instead of in his glove.

Even Bases Stolen
There was no "Alabama" Pitts in the lineup, but the boys in gray had a big time as 2-G batted out a 12 to 6 victory. Two bases were stolen, but the guards took that just as a matter of course. In fact, their lone objection was voiced in the fourth frame when "Shorts" Zierschmidt, center fielder for the losers, fouled the ball over the big stone wall and wanted to go outside after it.

One of the high lights came in the second inning when "Talky" Lewis, shortstop of the 2-G team, attempted to steal home. "Nose" Levido put the ball on him three feet from the plate with the remark "you know you can't get away with stealing anything in here."

Seibaler, middle gardener for the planing mill team, was the hitting star of the day, climaxing his performance in the sixth frame with a homer with three mates aboard. That blow ushered Andy Zyramic, opposing pitcher, out of the game and brought in "Chalky" Knox, tall and skinny Negro.

Chalky's first stunt was to retire the side by striking out "Husky" Hildreth, third baseman. As he missed the third strike "Husky" threw down his bat, glared at "Chalky" and said: "O. K. First face, I'll see you about that tonight."

Start of Season
The game was just one of several hundred which will be played inside the walls this summer. Forty-four teams, with 15 men to each squad, are in the prison league which opened its season May 20 and which will close when the snow flies. Four games are played each day.

Each team represents a different prison company, and when the team plays the whole company is given time off to see the game. Once the companies step on the ball ground all restrictions are off, the men may talk to each other, and they take advantage of that fact with a vengeance.

The umpire gets the benefit of most of the conversation, however. Deeters, one of the arbiters, said he once played in the Pacific Coast league, and that he was with Salt Lake City in 1921. His name wasn't Deeters, at that time, he said.

The big game of the season comes up a week from Thursday when the 2-H and the 1-1 teams clash. Neither has been defeated in four starts, and the boys say they want the day declared a legal holiday so they can all come out to see the game.

About 300 saw yesterday's contest. They hadn't planned to go any place else, several of them said, so they just dropped around.

They'll Fight Tomorrow Night

MAX BAER

JAMES J. BRADDOCK

Baer-Braddock Fight Fails To Arouse Much Excitement

By ALAN GOULD,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Despite its dramatic prospects and the probability it will be a surprisingly hard-fought match, the world's heavyweight championship fight between champion Max Aldebert Baer and challenger James J. Braddock tomorrow night has failed to arouse either the fine frenzy of excitement or the sharp differences of opinion generally associated with such momentous athletic affairs.

It may not be a financial flop, all things considered, but it certainly lacks the drawing power, Madison Square Garden's promoters predict a "gate" of $350,000 at their Long Island city bowl but on the basis of advance sales they appear to be optimistic. It may not exceed $250,000.

Braddock No Match
The widespread impression that Braddock, while a very game and deserving young man, is no match for the free-swinging, colorful and confident Californian has, no doubt, affected the advance interest, or lack of it.

During the four years since 1931, in which Baer has fought his way to the top, Braddock has been whipped nine times. The Jersey battler is three years older, slower and carries a less potent punch than the champion.

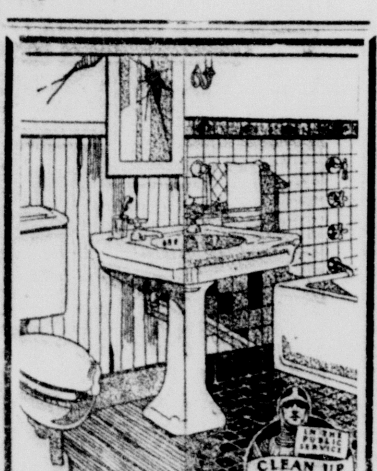

These indisputable facts account largely for Baer's status as a 5 to 1 choice in most betting books on Broadway. There's no Braddock money, even at that figure.

Braddock does not figure to win, but the bunch in this corner is that he will make it interesting for Baer and display the kind of courage that brings a fighter up from the resin to turn the tide, Jimmy has stamina and punching ability to go with his gameness.

The challenger's best chance, if any, will be to get the jump on the champion at the outset but he will be well advised not to run undue risks. The longer the fight lasts, the better Braddock's chances will be, even if he has to get up off the floor a few times to convince Baer he can "take it" and come back.

The suspicion that Baer may not be in the best of condition or that his hands will be subject to injury is not well-founded. For all his playboy activities and super-confidence, the champion is smart enough not to underestimate any fighter with Braddock's courage and determination. He is not only in good condition but he probably will discard his wisecracking, once he is face-to-face with Braddock in the ring.

"Lefty" Grove Shows Signs Of Returning With Old Fire Ball

Costly Red Sox Hurler, Beginning To Display Old Form, Allows Nary a Walk To Detroit Yesterday

By ANDY CLARKE, Associated Press Sports Writer.
Bob "Lefty" Grove, the costly darling of the Red Sox whose arm was a sadler blow than the depression to Boston fandom, is making his first ball back into the favor of the bleacherites.

His record gives him four games in the win column and an even number on the darker side but in the last three games, two of which he won, he has shown some of the stuff that once made him the standing pitcher in baseball.

Yesterday, the Red Sox won both ends of a doubleheader from Detroit, 3-1 and 5-2, yanking Mickey Cochrane's boys out of fourth position and moving in there themselves. The double win brought them within one point of the third place Cleveland Indians.

Grove was in there in the first encounter, allowing only five hits to best Lefty Joe Sullivan, on the mound for Detroit. The veteran pitcher has been pretty wild at times this season, had his old magic control and issued nary a walk.

But if history was made yesterday, it was made in negative fashion by the league-leading Giants.

The lovely Cincinnati Reds drubbed them twice in a doubleheader in full sight of the home folk. They scored a total of two runs on each game as the young, fighting Reds scored 4 and 3 respectively. It has to reach back into the time-browned records 16 years to find another instance when the Reds won a double-header at the polo grounds.

Clyde Castleman was handed his second defeat of the season as Tony Fretas led the league leaders down with seven hits in the first game and Leroy Hermann, former Cub pitcher, stopped the vaunted Giants' attack at five hits in the second.

Philles Beat Cubs
In the other National league games, the Philles defeated the Chicago Cubs 10-4, and the Pittsburgh Pirates opened their six-game series with Brooklyn with a 4-0 shutout, to go into a tie with St. Louis for second place.

In the American league, the White Sox divided a doubleheader with Washington, losing the opener 9-8 and winning the after-piece 9-3. Al Simmons, the White Sox' star outfielder, who was batting as low as .250, found his eye to collect five safe blows, including a homer with the bases loaded in the first game and a homer with two aboard in the second.

The Yankees widened their league lead by winning both games of the twin bill with the St. Louis Browns 7-4 and 9-3. At Cleveland, the Athletics walked off with both ends of a doubleheader, 4-2 and 5-1.

The Cardinals-Braves game at Boston was postponed.

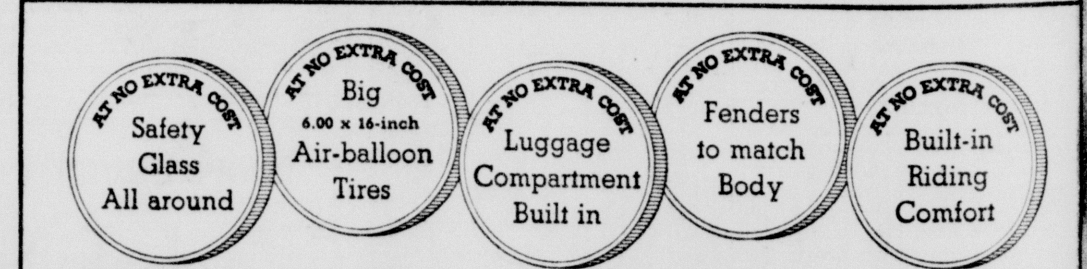

CAPITAL NINE WINS
COLUMBUS, June 12.—Errors at Wilberforce college aided Capital university in ending its 1935 baseball season with a 9 to 5 victory here yesterday.

EXTRA DOLLAR VALUE—instead of extra cost

FORD BUILT many dollars of extra value into the 1935 Ford V-8 and then reduced the price.

Safety glass all around at no extra cost. "Comfort Zone" riding, which gives back seat passengers a "front seat ride". A luggage compartment, built into the car. Fenders that match the car. Big 6.00 x 16-inch air-balloon tires (extra wide tread).

Study these features carefully. If they were not provided as part of the purchase price, you would find they represented an extra cost running into many additional dollars. But they are all included in the delivered price of the new Ford V-8. Consider this when purchasing your 1935 car. No matter what you want in a car—style, safety, speed, power, economy or comfort—the Ford V-8 will meet your needs. See it today at your Ford dealer's. It is the biggest dollar value in Ford history.

KIDNAP TRIAL PLANS OPENED

Meanwhile, Police "Wait-It-Out" in Hunt For Third Suspect

Even federal agents broke their characteristic silence to deny reports that their intense activity near Butte indicated Mahan had been captured.

Harmon M. Waley, young ex-convict, and his blonde wife, who are reported to have confessed their part in the kidnapping, still were held here, but arrival of a complaint charging them with violating the federal kidnapping law was expected to throw into operation machinery for their removal to Tacoma.

The Lindbergh law charges were filed against the Waleys and Mahan after an announcement by federal authorities that it had been determined the kidnap victim was taken across the Washington state line into Idaho.

"Maybe yes, and maybe no," was the reply given by E. J. Connelley, special agent in charge of the investigation here, when asked whether the Waleys would be arraigned today and rushed to Tacoma.

Law Demands Death

Previously it had been indicated the couple would be returned to Washington to face the untested state kidnap law which carries an automatic death penalty unless the jury recommends leniency.

The Lindbergh law calls for a death sentence only if the victim has been harmed. Members of the district attorney's staff and federal agents at Tacoma declined to comment on the possibility the death sentence might be asked on the ground George's nervous system had been harmed.

This question came up when it was recalled that George's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Weyerhaeuser, Jr., had issued a statement shortly after he was liberated, in which they said:

"George was frightened and nervously upset and unable to answer questions clearly. The terrible ordeal he has gone through has brought him back a badly shaken little boy."

More than half the $200,000 ransom had been recovered today, with the finding by justice department agents of $90,700 cashed beneath an anthill in a rugged, brush-strewn canyon near here. The Waleys reportedly disclosed the hiding place of their share of the money.

Activities of the government agents in uncovering the hidden money were related by Mr. and Mrs. S. Andrew Jackson, residents of a nearby summer cottage. They said they saw a man and a woman in the company of federal agents come to the spot at 1:30 a. m. yesterday, and that the cache was found by the aid of automobile headlights and flashlights.

Officers dug up an anthill about 100 feet to the right of the highway through Emigration canyon and found the money buried about one foot under the surface. The Jacksons were awakened by the sound of the automobiles and they watched the party ascend the side of the hill to the anthill. The party was on the hillside about two hours and then departed. Three men returned to the scene about 3 o'clock, carrying a gunny sack.

An accounting of Waley's purported share of the ransom money, shows that $90,700 was recovered at the mountainside cache; $4,000 was allegedly burned by Waley when he attempted to rid himself of evidence and approximately $300 was reported spent by him and his wife.

BOSTON—The First Baptist church is observing its 270th anniversary. Organized June 7, 1665, with nine members, it was the fifth church on the western continent.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouths and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything. What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and 4% of our food decays in our 28 feet of bowels. This decay sends poison all over our body every six minutes.

When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped "donkey," don't use a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a calomel (mercury) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and scalds the rectum in many people. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for—24¢. ©1934, C.M.Co.

F.D.R. ADDRESSES CADETS' CLASS

President Asserts Great Need of World Is Peace

Secretary Dem of the war department was present to stand by Mr. Roosevelt's side as he handed the diplomas to the graduating cadets. Dem arrived unexpectedly with an official party from Washington yesterday, and in his honor a special regimental parade was held.

The entire corps, in full dress uniform, gleaming with gold braid and starched white trousers, passed in review.

Graduation parade, the last one for members of the graduating class, was held late yesterday on the Plains with Major General William D. Connor, superintendent of the academy, and his staff as reviewing officers.

With the conclusion of the parade came the formality of recognizing the Plebe class. As the cadets reached the barracks, the second and third classes turned and shook hands with the Plebes, dropping the traditional "Mr." by which they had addressed the lower classmen all year. The Plebes were greeted as equals in the corps for the first time since they entered the academy last July.

After the graduation exercises today, the new second lieutenants will have a leave of absence until Sept. 15, when they will join the army stations to which they will be assigned.

A new class of cadets will enter the academy on July 1.

Grass Rooters Will Seek 1936 Victory On Basis Of This Issue

Smith Given Hand

Alfred E. Smith, mentioned in the past as a possible Republican candidate, was given a hand while praising the Springfield meeting as the start of "an aggressive fight that will culminate in a Republican victory" next year.

Starting, without candidates, the Grass Roots convention ended without a boom. Hotel lobby talk of potential nominees was kept off the floor and not a speaker referred to past or potential G. O. P. nominees.

Controversies that grew out of the writing of the resolutions were quieted before the two reports as a "declaration of grievances" against President Roosevelt and a "declaration of principles" advocated for 1936—were adopted by acclamation.

COAL DEADLINE DRAWING NEAR

38-Day Supply Estimated As Strike Clouds Darken

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 12—A 38-day coal supply was estimated on hand today as strike clouds darkened over the coal industry.

The bureau of mines, drawing on recent mining reports, said an abnormal supply was available due to increased activity in the coal pits since the strike loomed. Next Monday, June 17, has been set as the deadline for a nation-wide walk-out in the coal industry.

Guffey Bill Is Hope

The Guffey coal stabilization bill, which the President was quoted recently as believing necessary to avert martial law in certain sections of the country, was viewed by its supporters as the only strike deterrent in prospect. Its most ardent supporters gave the measure little chance of meeting congress-

Sheriff Frank Ballantine, state highway patrolman and Mahoning county sheriff's deputies investigated reports of picketing at the John Pascola mine early this morning.

Mrs. John Pascola said "there is no strike." She declared that a group of miners had leased the mine and were working it now. Reports to Sheriff Ballantine said that other miners who had worked there before were striving to gain employment.

Authorities declared there was no trouble of any nature.

sional approval before the strike deadline. However, they said, it might be passed and signed before stocks on hand were exhausted and a coal shortage began to be felt.

The bureau of mines report for the week ended May 25—the latest available—showed there were approximately 32,987,000 tons of bituminous coal stored for industrial consumers and retail dealers, or sufficient to last about 38 days. In addition, the report stated, there were 1,898,000 tons in transit and 4,200,000 on lake docks.

Since that report was compiled, coal men say production has increased "tremendously" with a decline in consumption, indicating the additional coal mined had been going into stocks.

One informed source estimated the amount of coal on hand would last 60 days after a suspension of mining.

Evidence that the coal industry began stepping up its production before April 1 in preparation for a cessation of operations, is found in official figures showing the stocks of coal on hand as of April.

Estimate Supplies

At that time, supplies for individual industrial groups were estimated as follows:

Electric power utilities, about 75 days; railroads, 30 days; steel and rolling mills, 42 days; gas plants, 72 days; cement plants, 56 days.

The drive for larger coal reserves also was reflected in the bureau of mines coal production report for the week ended June 1 which showed the output of bituminous coal totaled 6,760,000 tons, or more than 370,000 tons in excess of production for the week ended May 25.

During a corresponding week last year—the week ended June 2, 1934—soft coal production was only 5,701,000 tons.

Although United Mine Workers' leaders predict the strike will take more than 450,000 miners out of the pits at midnight June 16, one coal man privately expressed belief there would be a "substantial tonnage" of coal mined throughout the walkout.

He said he believed not all the coal fields would close and that he expected coal would be mined in parts of eastern Kentucky and West Virginia where, he explained, the union is not as strong as it is in the north.

"The union locals don't have as much money in those fields as elsewhere," he continued, "and if the operators should boost the rate a little, those fellows will work. The union won't be able to control them."

Opportunities to buy to advantage are found daily in The News classified adv. columns.

Theater Attractions

Paul Muni in "Black Fury" will be shown at the State theater tonight and tomorrow. This picture brings to the screen the love, hate, sorrows and joys of miners in the Pennsylvania coal fields. Paul Muni has the role of a miner who is in love with Karen Morley, playing one of the girls in the coal town. William Gargan is also in the cast.

Bearing the name of Joe Radek in the story, Muni appears as a Slovak character. Muni's one-man strike, in which he barricades himself in the mine after blowing up all but one entrance with dynamite stolen from the company's store of explosives, and his reconciliation with his sweetheart who had deserted him for the arms of a policeman, are two of the thrilling episodes in the picture.

Muni averaged only one picture a year until this year, when he made both "Bordertown" and "Black Fury."

Six years ago Muni was brought from the New York stage to Hollywood to star in pictures. On that visit he made two pictures, "The Valiant" and "Seven Faces."

More than a year later he returned to star in "Scarface," the film that made him famous. Then two more years elapsed before he made "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," "The World Changes" and "Hi, Nellie."

Muni is violently opposed to

quantity production so far as his own stardom is concerned. He holds to his original decision to never make more than two pictures a year.

Along with Muni, Karen Morley, who plays his sweetheart in "Black Fury," obtained recognition and stardom from her performance in "Scarface." Miss Morley was comparatively unknown when she did the gangster picture. That film established her, then she did several other successes: "Arsene Lupin," "Are You Listening," "Washington Masquerade," "Flesh," "Dinner at Eight" and "Wednesday's Child." She is the wife of the director, Charles Vidor.

Close Your Eyes for 30 Days!

A prominent nerve specialist once said to a patient: "Take a trip to the seashore or close your eyes for thirty days."

If you are nervous, cross, irritable, mentally tired and can't take a rest for your body, then give your eyes a rest any way, for they need rest more than any other organ of the human system.

The best way to "rest" your eyes is to wear properly fitted glasses. This will immediately relieve the strain and allow the eyes to perform their proper functions without overtaxing the nerves.
